Time For a New Set of Wheels???

When shopping for an auto it is tempting to let your emotions run wild, but doing so could result in a flawed or costly decision. Before you head out in search of the perfect auto, here are a few things to consider...

What kind of auto is right for you? That sports model might be what you've wanted since you were sixteen, but it may not be the best choice if you have young children.

Does the auto you've chosen hold its value? After the new has worn off many people are ready for something different... only to find the price their auto brings isn't enough to pay off their loan.

Can you afford the tag and insurance? If you can't, then it might be a good idea to consider a lower priced auto - or a pre-owned auto. Many are still under warranty and the price difference is significant!

Will the monthly payment leave you enough "wiggle room"? Far too many people have auto payments that leave them no room for much else. It may look good on paper, but paper doesn't take into consideration medical emergencies, broken hot water heaters, rent increases and the like.
